

Google Place Pages - Advanced Features

Alert: February 1: 2011

Google Places has dramatically altered the state of Search Engine Optimization. It is the first major move that Google has made to monetize their organic listings.

The “Place Page” link appears for many businesses and is a direct attempt to displace competitive aggregator websites such as Yelp, Yellow Pages and SuperPages.

Google pre-populate a “Place Page” with name, address and phone number which aims to encourage the “business owner” to click on the Place page and then “Verify the Listing” by creating a Place Pages account.

Google are ranking their own Place Pages higher than all other competitor pages - using Pins on Maps to take up “above the fold” positions on search results pages.

Place Pages “Events” - A Twitter Like Application

The below screen capture shows how Google offers “Events” which can be posted within the Place Pages and reflects onto. It provides local businesses with a similar functionality to Twitter yet with the promise of more people viewing it as the “Event” - once posted appears next to the business listing on the Google search results page.

Post to your place page View

Post about events, specials, and more. Example: "Live music tonight at 7pm!"
